International University
Liaison
Indonesia

COURSE OUTLINE

With the increasingly competitive world, the push towards higher productivity has become inevitable. Various measurements and parameters are in place to ensure organizations and managers are able to monitor the progress of operational activities. Numerous tools and approaches are incorporated into the pools of courses/subjects in the Department of Management. The courses are structured in such a way as to provide the managerial linkages between various competing issues in Business, Economics, Mathematics, Accounting, Finance, Operation and Social Sciences, in which partial disciplines are designed to be taught in relation to organizations across industrial sectors. The Department of Management offers a special emphasis on deeper knowledge and skills towards understanding the complexities of managing organizations.

The Department of Management aims to equip graduates with sufficient understanding and ability in handling various managerial tasks and responsibilities. As the study program in Management focuses around the intricacies of organizational activities and performance, students are challenged to evaluate the appropriateness of planning, organizing, directing, staffing, and controlling to achieve the optimum outcomes, particularly for the best possible level of effectiveness and efficiency.
